The best medical writers claim that the remedy for nasal catarrh must being, easy of application, and one that mocessal remedy a supplication, and one that will reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past obliges us to admit that only one remedy has met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms yield to it.

Disastrous Floods Reported From all Points in Southern Oregon -Many Bridges Gone.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.] THE STORM ENDED.

Work of Clearing the Oregon Railroad Will be Rapidly Pushed. From the RECORD-UNION Special Corresponder Morr, February 6th .- Just before sunset last evening the clouds all disappeared and grandeur. Clothed in robes of perfect white, she towers above everything, and Old residents here say she never looked o beautiful before, and many stood until dark gazing at the lovely scene. The cliffs and peaks are covered with fleecy snow, and near the base of the mountain the tops of the pine trees are barely visible above he immense depth of snow.

An artist could not select time more appropriate to sketch the wonderful scene nent on the very loftiest peak is visible, though covered with a coating of beautiful whiteness.

Not a bare spot can be seen on the whole nountain, and to-day is the first day in wo months that it has shown itself clearly to the inhabitants of the little town here. The engines which are lying here partly disabled are the ones which were snowed in for over a week between Sisson and Edgewood. They were engaged in working the snow-plow, and beside the trainmen there were 105 shovelers.

The snow fell so fast during the whole time they were there that the engines could not move and the men had to crawl on their hands and knees to break a trail to Sisson or Edgewood, in order to get food to eat. At last they succeeded in shoveling out a road to Sisson and arrived here on the morning of February 3d.

Your correspondent learned at the telegraph office here that Superintendent Pratt was at Ager, fifty-four miles above Mott. and was pushing on north to Hornbrook, five miles from the State line. The engineers who are here believe that when Mr. Pratt reaches Hornbrook he will not attempt to cross the Siskiyou Mountains, as the road is in such bad condition from washouts, but will turn back and endeavor to open the road south again, so that trains can run north of Redding as far as possible. The mail, it is thought, can be carried over Siskiyou Mountains, on the trail, while the track is being repaired.

THE STORM ENDED. Mотт, February 6th.—The sun has been ally for over two months, will give the railroad company a chance to get a start, and no efforts will be spared to clear the track as speedily as possible.

Superintendent Lindberg of Dunsmuir is working like a Trojan with men under his charge, and he even travels with the workng crews to urge them on.

Superintendent Pratt of the Southern Pacific Company was at Hornbrook this noon, and he intends to push on over the Siskiyou Mountains. Since this is the case re-

ON TO THE FRONT. MONTAGUE, February 6th .- The REC-ORD-Union's special correspondent boarded a special train, consisting of an engine and car, at Mott this afternoon and was taken north to Montague, forty-four far, and beyond here it is open to Hornbrook, where Superintendent Pratt is with the work trains pushing on over the Siskiyou mountains. He has a plentiful amount of supplies, ools and men with him, and will probably not come back until he reaches Ashland. On the trip from Mott to-day the stations of Igerna, Sisson, Edgewood and Gazelle were passed and the people were all out to At Sisson several buildings have caved in, and among them is the warehouse of Sisson, Crocker & Co. Supplies are running short in all these towns. Montague appears to be better supplied than any of Beyond Edgewood there is no snow to speak of, and cribbing has been placed under most all the bridges to make them safe. In coming here the engine ran over a large rock, and a hole was knocked in the airdrum, causing the air-brakes to become to be safe. The wholesale district is sub-useless. There are several feet of snow on merged, and the loss to business men in the Black Butte summit, though the greater quantity has melted. Your correspondent will endeavor to push on to Mr. Pratt to-

SOUTHERN OREGON. Oregon City and Salem Suffer from the Floods. ASHLAND (Or.), February 6th .- The rains are over for the present in this part of Ore-gon, and the streams are all falling. North of here, all the way to Portland, there are washouts, and the damages are of such extent that it will take longer to get trains running this far, than it will to put the California and Oregon in condition between here and Sacramento.

Two or three good sized bridges are gone between Ashland and Roseburg, besides culverts and washouts. At Roseburg the road over the Umpqua is gone. The bridges across the Willamette, near Harrisburg and at Jefferson, have their approaches washed away, but the main span is intact in each place. Many small bridges and culverts between Engene City and Portland are

The water is still rising at Portland, and reports from above give no hopes of a cessation for twelve hours. The topography of the city is such, however, that the spread of the water will be limited to a small area except the streets mentioned from Front to Third inclusive. Most of the territory flooded is low ground, and the greater part of it is not occupied by buildings. The greatest loss is anticipated should the flood

Aside from these contingencies, the real damage to the city is thought to be trifling. The isolation of the city from communication during the last three days was not caused by the floods, but by landslides along the Columbia river obstructing tracks and destroying poles and telegraph wires. A SINGULAR PROCEEDING.

The methods of administering justice in France radically differ from those of any other country. The French Courts indulge in practices that in this country or in England would not be tolerated. For instance, in what is known as the Commercial Courts, which sit at ports of entry, the practice obtains of exemplifying actions concerning which there is a conflict of testimony. Thus in a case of collision in harbor between vessels, it is a common thing for the Court to take to boats, to place the ships, or others, in the position in which those in question were said to have been just before the accident, and in some degree, to reproduce the situation. With us a diagram would be made and the witnesses would be required to point out the positions of the boats upon the paper. yet would have been rejected.

In the case of the woman Bompard, we are told that the Criminal Court is about to exercise broad powers, by permitting Charcot, the celebrated expert in hypnotism, to put the woman in a hypnotic condition in open Court, to ascertain, if posssi-Eyraud. If this is done a singularly interesting question will arise-in fact many questions. For instance, will the Court be justified in receiving the developments as testimony; in other words, in accepting the unconscious statements of the prisoner, against her, thus compelling her to testify are possibly under other than her own control? Will the French Court dare to establish the precedent that will approve the method of "magnetizing" the prisoner. this country science has not so far adreason to believe that it ever will. In America we do not believe that Courts will ever accept the testimony of a dreamer, or a hypnotized person against another, to say nothing of taking it against the patient. How can the Court determine that the subject placed under the "influence" is not merely a creature of the will of the operator? is a vital question. We can rest assured that an American or an English Court would feel insulted by such a proposition as the French tribunal is reported to have entertained. Too little is known as yet of hypnotism to justify its acceptance as a science, or at least a science of such certainty as to warrant its developments being received in evidence for the establishment of a fact, or for its dispute. If it should turn out that the woman Bompard, while in an unconscious state, makes statements and indulges in actions indicating that she was engaged in the murder of Evraud, and on the strength of such "testimony" she should be sent to the guillotine, the civilized world will be shocked and will enter its protest. It may be that the purpose of the Court is only to ascertain facts that will enable the officials of the police department to procure other

Brief Sketch of the Elected Clergyma Many Words of Praise for

[From the S. F. Bulletin, February 6th.] There was a large attendance of San Fran cisco residents at the Episcopal Convention at Trinity Church to-day. The interest was doubtless due to the understanding that this morning the election of an As sistant Bishop of the diocese would occur. Many ladies were present and showed great interest in all proceedings.

After devotional exercises, at which Rev Dr. Reed and Rev. F.S. Church, of Trinity officiated, the report of the special Commit tee on Order of Business was called for. It was read by Rev. C. L. Miel and caused much debate, because the three members of the committee, Rev. Dr. Chetwood, C. V agree. Messrs. Chetwood and Miel submitted a majority report and Mr. Gibbs a consequence between the two reports was majority report favored the clerical dele chosen by the clergy. The minority report favored the lay members and clergy voting together for the candidate.

A REVOLUTIONARY METHOD. Rev. Dr. Foute, A. N. Drown, Rev. E. B. Spalding and others opposed the plan of the majority report. Rev. Mr. Spaulding said it was "revolutionary." The result of a prolonged discussion was that a motion offered by Rev. Dr. Gray, to lay both reports on the table and proceed to the election according to the provisions of the state and brodges of stage Beatty, but without indorsing it:

From the time the first funding bill was passed in 1786 to the present day, when here are probably two or three hundred funding bills in operation, I have not heard of a Court, a Judge, a lawyer, a legislator, a casuist, a statesman or divine who uttered a word against the legality, morality, wis-dom or justice of such a law, except the legal and editorial luminaries of Sacra-from bondholders these bonds at their highest market value, thought it not at all mmoral to say to those same creditors when these bonds and coupons were worth from 40 to 95 cents on the dollar: "We Rev. Dr. Beers thought it singular that no nominations had yet been made by the laity.

Nominations in addition to those made yesterday were called for before proceeding to election.

Rev. Dr. Beers thought it singular that will pay you twenty-five cents for your bonds and coupons if you will come in and surrender them all. If not, we will never pay you a cent." This is such a mixture of stupidity, ignorance and bosh that I feel disgusted that I have to answer it. Mr. Anderson says the amendment to the Funded Debt Commission Act, passed in 1889, "has completely destroyed the Comnission, and any citizen taxpayer could at once institute proceedings to prevent that once institute proceedings to prevent that Board from acting under the amendment of 1889. * * * The repealing clause in this Act abrogates the vital point of the Funded Debt Commission Act, and leaves the Commission without any power or anthority."

I should judge from this rigmarole of nonsense Mr. Anderson never read the Act referred to and has not got the least conception of what the Act contains. There is no repealing clause in the amendatory Act Rev. Dr. Foute read a number of letters of 1889, and if it was declared unconstitutestifying to the great worth of Dr. Nichols. The amendment of 1889 does sioners. away with a little of the red tape of the first Act and perhaps saves the city $100 a year in advertising. It also provided a method of investing our funds so they might bear interest in case we could not buy bonds and coupons. That contingency has never happened; and under the late decision is never likely to happen. To declaring this law unconstitutional would only cost the city $100 a year for seven or eight years at most.

A city that quietly bore the outrage of having the funds of the Funded Debt Com-mission tied up for five years to indulge Mr. Anderson and his clients in an abortive attempt to force the bondholders o accept an impractical scheme will not make a sour face at having to pay the papers $100 a year for extra advertising.

Mr. Catlin, in a communication to the Bee, asserts that it is only under the Act of March 29, 1889, that the Fund Commission is now enabled to act at all; that under that Act only is it enabled to give more than thirty-five cents on the dollar for bonds, and as they cannot be bought at that price we are powerless to do anything under our present organization whenever nconstitutional, as they certainly can do ness of that Commission is to get a new conferred on the Fund Commission Mr. White follows this up by a full indorsement of Mr. Catlin's views. I have not attempted in this statement of Mr. Catlin's views to follow his language. statement in concise terms.

First—There is nothing of all that matter referred to by Messrs, Catlin and White in the amendatory Act of 1889. The amendatory Act to which I suppose he re-fers was passed June 9, 1887. We have been acting under that amendatory Act nearly three years. I know during all that time the question has been discussed as to whether that amendment was or was not constitutional. The holding of that Act real estate. ecuniary gain to two or three of the large ondholders in San Francisco in two ways or at least they thought it would be so. In the first place, forcing the Fund Commissioners out of the bond market, we would have had a surplus of funds for buying oupons, and rather than let it lie idle, we would pay them their own price for oupons. Second, if we could not buy the only large speculators, could have dic-tated their own price to be paid to outside olders of bonds. The small bondholders would have been greatly injured by such a lecision.

Now, it would seem the San Francisco awyers are not quite so confident of geting that amendment declared void as are four home lawyers. I will state here what he amendment is that is set the seminary thereon.

The amendatory section follows the language of the old Act until it comes to the proviso. The amendatory proviso reads as follows: Provided no bid shall be accepted at a higher rate than par." The word "par" is substituted for "at a higher rate than thirty-five cents on a dollar." Is this proviso an unconstitutional change in the original Act? If this amendment, however, is declared unconstitutional and void, still the Commission will not be destroyed or its usefulness gone. No doubt it will be impeded and delayed in accomplishing the final payment of the debt. The principal loss to the city will be the delay and loss of interest at times on our funds whilst they are locked up in the bank instead of being invested. BALLOT-BOX FORGERY. John Sherman and Murat Halstead Give Testimony. WASHINGTON, February 6th .- The Hous Committee on the ballot-box forgery this morning called Senator John Sherman as the first witness. He was shown Exhibit "A," and declared that he never signed it. He saw it first when it was sent to him in November by Halstead.

The signature was a copy of his rubber franking stamp and not an imitation of his signature. The witness never heard or knew of the ballot-box contract and never heard of the Campbell bill before Governor Foraker's Music Hall speech.

Murat Halstead, editor of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, testified that when he published Governor Campbell's signature he cut off from a photographic copy of the paper the signatures below Campbell's. The witness told how he got hold of the paper, of his talks with Governor Foraker and others about it, and how it was thought advisable to use it in the campaign against Campbell.
Witness did not see any room for questioning the genuineness of the papers. told Fcraker it was necessary to use the paper or part of it, and that he felt so ex-asperated at the idea of Sherman, Butterworth and McKinley going in with John McLean in such a matter that he felt compelled to explode it under them. It was something more than policy, almost a pub-lic duty. Campbell was the only one before the people as a candidate for a public office and he thought it would be proper to use his name.

Another resson for cutting all names but

Campbell's was that Sunset Cox, whose name was among the forgeries, had just died, and witness felt convinced of the genuineness of the signatures.

Halstead's theory of the forgery was that it was never intended or expected to harm anybody. The motive originally was Wood's extreme anxiety to get the "Smoke Inspectorship." It was preposterous to suppose that Governor Foraker thought there was anything fradulent about it. There was a cloud of witnesses and a lawyer who drew the contract.

A benefit performance at the Broadway, up the contract.

Witness wondered now that they did not come down and deny it the day after the publication. Undoubtedly Wood put Sen-ator Sherman's name on it to make it impossible for Foraker to use the paper.

After its publication witness was staggered to see Senator Sherman's declaration that the paper was a lie, but he assumed that Sherman was extremely unlikely to have signed the paper knowing what it

Thirty years ago Sherman lost the Speakership by signing in that way "The Compendium of the Helper Book." Mr. Halstead placed at the disposal of the committee his private letters to Governor Foraker, and said that some of them were conclusive evidence that both himself and Foraker were convinced of the soundness of the paper.

Cogswell asked why witness did not verify the character of the paper by Sher-

He replied that Butterworth was not in the country, or had just returned, and Sherman was in Washington. He also said that you could get a member of Congress to sign a petition to get himself hanged. It was not pleasant to put a finger on a sore spot like that.

stand at the head of the cannon, but I got Continuing, Halstead said there was sup-posed to be feeling between Senator Sherman and Governor Foraker, growing out of events at the Chicago Convention. Ohio ntained more than her share of disinguished men, and there was necessarily riction where they are so crowded. The delicate relations existing between Sherman and Foraker made it highly expedient to allow the paper to get out through Foraker's agency; that a reflection on the Senator would have been fatal to the party.

Witness had not relied on Woods' words egarding the paper, but was guided by the internal evidence of the paper, a document ar beyond Woods' ability to produce. He believed from the beginning that Foraker had been fooled, as he had himself. Witness never contemplated a rivalry for the Senatorship between himself, Mc-
